Articulation Definition

Articulation is the process of developing a formal written and published agreement that identifies courses (or sequences of courses) on a "sending" campus that are comparable to or acceptable in lieu of specific course requirements at a "receiving" campus. Articulated courses are not to be construed as equivalent but rather as comparable or in lieu of each other. A successful articulation process provides students the opportunity to progress to the next level of instruction at a receiving institution.

City College of San Francisco Articulation as a "Sending Institution" timelines. Ecause timelines are established by the baccalaureate institutions for course submission, it is the responsibility of the Articulation Officer to mak sure the College Curriculum Committee adheres to those specific timelines. The Articulation Officer is responsible for providing the Chief Instructional Officer and the College Curriculum Committee with a calendar of articulation deadlines and submission requirements.

The Articulation Officer is responsible for the development, maintenance, and distribution of articulation agreements. The Articulation Officer follows guidelines provided in the California Articulation Policies and Procedures & Articulation Council (CIAC).

articulation agreement by major, and University of California Transferrable Course Agreement (UC TCA).
Associate Degree for Transfer templates are developed and vetted by the Course Identification Numbering System (C-ID) and published on the State Chancellor's Office (CCCCO) website.
AP, IB, and CLEP acceptance is based on CCCCO's minimum requirements along with departmental decisions. All efforts are made to align with the CSU and UC (University of California).
Pending transcript evaluation, lower division course credit is accepted for transfer from colleges accredited by recognized regional accrediting associations.
C-ID reviews courses for CSU equivalency in certain disciplines and develops and vets Associate Degrees for Transfer
High school courses that are technical in scope and content are considered for receiving articulation.
Other public or private colleges and universities initiate articulation agreements with City College of San Francisco and determine comparability. These agreements are not necessarily bilateral and students returning to City College of San Francisco may have to request an evaluation of courses taken at the receiving institution for acceptance. City College of San Francisco Catalog Review

City College of San Francisco updates the Catalog annually to ensure accuracy in courses, programs, general education breadth, and policies to facilitate student transfer. Universities and colleges rely on the College's Catalog, which is available online, to assist in the articulation review process and maintain currency.
